

Dr. Jacquelyn McCroskey, Professor of Child Welfare at University of Southern California, School of Social Work

Jacquelyn McCroskey is the John Milner Professor of Child Welfare and Co-Director of the Children's Data Network at the University of Southern California's Suzanne Dworak-Peck School of Social Work. Her work focuses on structure, financing, outcome measurement and collaboration across public and private child and family service systems. Recent work focuses on improving access to early care and education services for at-risk families, community-based prevention of child maltreatment and linking administrative data to better understand child and family trajectories across service systems. Dr. McCroskey has served on the Los Angeles County Policy Roundtable for Child Care and Development since its inception (2001-present), was on the First 5 LA Commission (1999-2009) and serves as Chair of the County's Commission on Children and Families. In 2003, the California Chapter of the National Association of Social Workers named her the California Social Worker of the Year.
